Calculating Financial Need...

FAFSA and CADAA ask questions in two areas...

1. College Plans- To determine your total cost of attendance (COA)
2. Financial Situation- To determine how much your family can afford to pay for your education (SAI)

$$\text{COA} - \text{SAI} = \text{Financial Need}$$

The difference is your financial need!

Cost of Attendance – COA

The College's total cost of attendance figures based on estimates.

- Tuition/Fees
- Housing
- Books
- Food
- Transportation
- Personal Expenses

- There are many ways to cut down the total COA!

Direct Costs VS. Indirect Costs

Direct Costs

- Tuition
- Campus Specific Fees
- Health Fees
- Housing

Indirect Costs

- Books and Supplies
- Transportation
- Food
- Personal Expenses

Student Aid Index

- SAI will replace Expected Family Contribution
- Used to determine eligibility for federal financial aid based on what is on your FAFSA form
- New SAI formula may result in a student receiving a negative SAI
- Change in formula is expected to increase the number of eligible Pell Grant recipients

EFC VS. SAI

EFC Formula

Household size reported by student applicant

Number in college impacts EFC

Businesses and farms with fewer than 100 employees not counted as an asset

Lowest EFC is 0

SAI Formula

Family size automatically calculated based on tax forms

Number in college no longer considered in SAI

Businesses and farms of any size count as an asset

Lowest SAI -1500

Determining Financial Need Examples...

	Consumes River College *	Sacramento State	UC Davis	University of the Pacific **
COA -	$17,938	$28,844	$41,389	$72,028
SAI	-$4,000	$4,000	$4,000	$4,000
= Financial Need	$13,938	$24,844	$37,389	$68,028

 Annual cost of attendance is an estimate and includes fees, books, supplies, living expenses, etc.*

 Based on living on campus*
